Important:

The floor panel is not suitable for protecting a combustible floor against the risk of fire. Refer to the installation manual of the Barbas wood stove for the required minimum distances from flammable materials.

Intended use

The floor plate is intended for use in conjunction with Barbas freestanding wood stoves.

The floor plate must only be used in conjunction with a Barbas wood-burning stove for which the dimensions, material and installation of the floor plate are suitable.

The floor plate must never be used as a substitute for the requirements regarding floor protection, fire safety, safety distances or installation as set out in the Barbas wood stove installation manual, applicable regulations or local installation guidelines.

Pre-installation check

Check the floor panel for scratches, warping or other damage. Check that the felt layer on the underside of the floor panel is not damaged and is not (partially) loose. In such cases, contact your dealer.

Ensure that the subfloor is clean, level and dry.

Installation

Do not use a knife or any other sharp object to open the packaging..

Remove the floor plate from the packaging.

Carefully position the floor plate in front of the wood-burning stove and slide it into place. Ensure that the side with the felt layer is facing downwards. Make sure the floor plate fits snugly against the front and sides of the wood-burning stove.

Do not use masking tape. Using this may damage the paint finish on the floor plate.

Maintenance

- Remove ash residues and other loose dirt with a soft brush.
- Use a mild cleaning agent with a soft cloth to clean the floor panel. Do not use abrasive or corrosive cleaning agents. Do not use a scouring pad.
- Check regularly that the floor plate is still stable and correctly positioned.
- Do not place any hard or sharp objects on the floor plate.

Warranty Terms

Barbas BV's general warranty terms apply to this product. Please refer to the wood stove's user manual for the terms and conditions.
